This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. REPORT.

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Maine:

In obedience to the requirements of the laws of the State, it becomes my duty and pleasure to lay before you a report of the Maine State Library for the years 1901-1902.

GROWTH OF THE LIBRARY.

It seems fitting and proper at this time to lay before you such facts concerning the State Library as may enable you to understand and fully realize its true condition and immediate needs and wants, and to comprehend more fully the extent and value of its educational work to the people of Maine. The rapidity with which the library has been extended and developed, in all its departments, during the last two years is little known by any one outside its walls, and is scarcely realized and comprehended even by those who carry on its work. Even at this time, in reviewing the work of the last two years, I have been startled and surprised beyond measure at the rapid growth of the library.

THE TRAVELING LIBRARY.

The section of our work which is evidently of the most interest to the public, though not most valuable and enduring, is that connected with the traveling libraries. When the last Legislature met there were 40 of these libraries containing 50 books each, or a total of 2,000 volumes. There are now 80 of these libraries in active use, or 4,000 volumes. These books afford entertainment and instruction to about 60,000 readers annually, as indicated by records returned to this office. Their use is increasing in the small towns, neighborhoods, and even in the lumber camps of Northern Maine. They are sought after by high schools, and prove very helpful to study clubs and granges. They supplement the efforts of the local libraries in their attempt to give complete and satisfactory service to outlying districts of the several towns.

Connected with the traveling library is the loaning of single volumes on payment of transportation, to individuals all over the State. As a matter of fact, about one-half of the books of the Maine State Library are loaned out on call whenever requested. Our local history, reference books, and rare works are not permitted to leave the library, except upon an extraordinary occasion.

In most states, I see that the traveling library is administered by a commission, entirely independent of the State Library, but we believe that the work can be done here at less than one-half the cost elsewhere, as we have all the facilities and are in close touch with the free libraries, and all other organizations throughout the State.

USE BY STUDY CLUBS AND LITERARY ASSOCIATIONS.

In this State there are 325 granges with a total membership of 34,000 people; 105 clubs of the Women's Federation, with a membership of 5,000. Our high schools, academies, colleges, and small libraries represent 500 organizations, containing not less than 30,000. All together there are over 1,000 clubs and associations in the State, representing nearly 75,000 readers each of whom has a free and equal right to demand the use of these traveling libraries, or of any single volume that can be safely loaned from the library. When we reflect upon these facts, and consider the tendency of all classes of persons and institutions to rely on the good offices of the State to supply their wants, there can be little doubt in our minds that this branch of the State Library is destined to sustain an almost unlimited growth and expansion, and it will be easily apparent to any one who has observed with any degree of care the growth of the loaning department of the library, that the facilities in this department will have to be increased 100 per cent within the next two years to meet the growing demand of the people. If the Legislature shall consider it wise and just to place limitation upon the use of the State library in educating the people, and shall restrict within a narrow limit the books that may be loaned, and the number of traveling libraries that may be sent out to the people, this growing demand upon the time, labors, and resources of the library may be checked and retarded, but I believe that the time is near at hand when the State will be called upon to furnish every citizen at his home with good reading. This work will have to be undertaken and carried on by the State Library, acting in co-operation with the Library Commission and the free libraries and literary organizations above mentioned.

THE EXCHANGE DEPARTMENT.

It is not alone in this section of the library work that the department has been largely increased. The exchange of public documents and reports has nearly doubled since January, 1900. Exchanges have been effected in twelve leading states, whereby Bowdoin College, the University of Maine and the Maine Historical Society receive the publications of these states, free, in exchange for like publications sent from this department. Exchanges have also been made with the provinces of Canada, Germany, Hawaii, Porto Rico, and with the leading universities throughout our own country.

DISTRIBUTION OF DOCUMENTS.

The distribution of documents has been largely increased and to some extent reduced to a system. Over 200 libraries and other institutions of this State are now receiving regularly every publication issued. The Maine Historical publications are now placed in these local libraries where they cannot fail to create an interest in the study of the history of Maine, and of her resources and unrivaled beauty. Owing to the large increase in the exchanges it will be necessary to ask the Legislature to set apart for the use of the library an increased number of each publication. Not less than 400 copies of each report should be received for the library, instead of one-half that number now reserved for exchange and distribution.

Eight thousand packages have been sent out by express since the last Legislature adjourned, and an equal number of letters and parcels have been transmitted through the mail. Between 40,000 and 50,000 books and pamphlets are distributed annually from this department.

PERMANENT ACQUISITION.

The library has grown very rapidly in the permanent acquisition of books and other works suited to historical study and in its law section. During the past two years there have been added to the library by purchase, 3,190 books; by exchange, 3,360; by donation, 933 books; by donation from the United States, 1,932 volumes, making a total of 9,415. When we add to this amount over 2,000 volumes which have been purchased for use in the traveling libraries, we have a total of over 11,415 books and pamphlets which have been added to the State Library within the past two years. The library now has on its shelves over 18,000 law reports, law journals, digests and statutes, embracing decisions of every court in the United States, Canada, England, Ireland, and Scotland. The reports of Australia and India will complete the decisions of nearly every court in the world which are printed in the English language. The library is now receiving the historical collections of every State and national association devoted to that subject. Many town histories and family histories have been added within the past two years. These have proved very helpful to a rapidly increasing number of students who devote many days and months to the study of these books here at the library. There is not a library east of Boston so fully and completely equipped for the genealogist, historical student, the lawyer, and the man of affairs, as is the State Library of Maine.

MORE ROOM NEEDED.

With all these valuable collections for the use of our citizens, and in constant use by them, there is not to be found in the library a single room or any adequate space where any one can sit down and consult these books with any degree of satisfaction and without interruption and inconvenience. Every inch of space in the present library where a book can be stored is now occupied. Every inch of shelving is now full to repletion. Every store room outside the library proper is crowded. Under the laws enacted within the past ten years the doors of this library have been flung wide open to all the people. Every citizen has a right to call upon the officers for a single volume or for a traveling library. Every citizen has a right to come to this department and have its treasures placed before him for investigation and study. Every citizen has a right to send his questions here for answers. It is well known that the people never give up a right or a valuable privilege once granted to them, but they proceed to increase the privilege and to enhance the powers contained in the original grant. To meet their wants and demands it will be absolutely necessary to double the traveling libraries in the coming two years, and to give the State Library additional rooms in which to transact business and in which to store its rapidly increasing volumes.

ADDITIONAL CLERK HIRE.

It will also be necessary to supply money to properly remunerate the present corps of assistants and for the employment of two additional clerks beside the assistant librarian and cataloguer, now worked beyond the limit of reason. There should be a sufficient number of clerks to carry on the library work faithfully and promptly.

The State Library belongs to the people; it is administered in their interest and for their benefit; it should be suited to their convenience. There should be one or more rooms for study and research for the lawyer and student, and ample space for the storage of books. We need at once storage room for 10,000 volumes, which will come to the library during the next two years.

Should the Legislature, in its wisdom, see fit to authorize the erection of a building for library purposes, it should be capable of holding 200,000 volumes, which will be collected within this library within the next fifteen years. Such building should contain in addition to its storage rooms, rooms for study and reference. It should be constructed for use, and not for the display of artistic fancies.

I believe the people and the Legislature, if they rightly understood the wants and needs of the library, would be ready to authorize such expenditure. A statement of the expenditures of this department will be found on the closing pages of this report.

L. D. CARVER,
State Librarian.

AUGUSTA, MAINE, December 20, 1902.

HOW TO ORGANIZE AND ESTABLISH A FREE LIBRARY.

To whom it may concern:

You ask for advice as to the best method to pursue in order to establish a Free Library in your town. As the conditions in all places are not the same, I can only venture to give you a general outline of procedure.

You should first organize a library association under chapter 55 of the Revised Statutes. Blanks for that purpose can be obtained at the State Library. At your first meeting a board of three or five directors should be chosen, one of whom should be president of the association. You will also choose some capable person as secretary and treasurer.

Your association will then be in a position to act. Usually the opening of a reading room for the young people, one or more evenings in the week, is advisable. You can then contribute money for the purchase of books, solicit money, books, and magazines as gifts from all your citizens, and ask by circular letter contributions from former residents and natives of your town, residing in Maine and other states of the Union.

After you have collected enough books to justify this action, you can open a loaning department, charging a small fee. You can also procure from the State the loan of a traveling library composed of new books. These books will add much to the interest, and aid you in securing additional members for your association, and larger contributions. When your association has become well established, and the sentiment of the town is favorable, you should make a free gift of all your books and other library property to the town, on condition that the inhabitants thereof shall maintain a free library and that your association shall have the selection of a majority of the trustees of the library. In this manner, when the library is turned over to the town, your association still continues to exist, thus securing to the library a legally organized body of men and women interested in its welfare and vigorous maintenance, who will stand ready to give aid when the town neglects its duty in this direction.

There are many other suggestions that could be made respecting minor matters that will naturally suggest themselves to your mind as you enter upon this work. The importance of uniting all the different literary societies in your town in support of the library movement should be among your first thoughts.

The school, the church, and the women's clubs can be made strong and efficient allies in carrying on your unselfish work. The State Library can contribute much, and when your town is ready to take the library and make it free, the State will give books to the value of one hundred dollars and cash to the amount of ten per cent of the sum the town may raise and appropriate for the support of the library.

Whenever or wherever a library association is formed and established, it is of great importance that immediate notice be given to the State Librarian. As secretary of the Maine Library Commission, he is ready both to furnish printed matter respecting approved methods of library organization, and to visit such places, giving timely aid which will be of most value in the earlier and more difficult period of the library's development.

HOW TO OBTAIN A TRAVELING LIBRARY.

DEAR SIR: Please procure the signatures of five citizens of your town to the enclosed application and return the same to me with a check or P. O. order for $2.50.

On the receipt of the application and money, I will send, as you may direct, a traveling library of fifty books for the use of your citizens during the next six months. These books are carefully selected by the Maine Library Commission. Each library is made up of works on history, biography, travels, morals, science, natural history, and about thirty volumes of recent fiction. The fee you pay is barely sufficient to meet the cost of transportation, which the State undertakes to pay both to and from your place. Enclosed find list of libraries now on hand. Please indicate your first, second, and third choice out of these. It is very important that you should keep a strict and accurate record of all books loaned and of the names of all borrowers. It is also quite as desirable that you should return the library to us promptly at the end of six months.

Applications from a free library, may be signed by the librarian alone or by one of the directors thereof.

BOWDOIN COLLEGE LIBRARY.

The library of Bowdoin College, the oldest as well as one of the largest collections of books within the State, has had the unusual experience of waiting 100 years for a building which it could call its own, and which was definitely planned for its use. This delay has been more than rewarded in the size and character of the fire proof structure that will be dedicated to its use in June, 1903.

General Thomas H. Hubbard and his wife of New York City have presented this building to Bowdoin. Henry Vaughan, Esq., of Boston, the architect, has spared neither time nor money in securing every material facility for making the library the true centre of the college, a rendezvous for both instructors and undergraduates, a place for study and investigation, for instruction and literary recreation. In completing the college quadrangle by the gift of this building, General Hubbard has secured to his alma mater fireproof accommodations for its rare and valuable collection of books that could never be replaced, if once destroyed, save at enormous expenditure. The building is quite symmetrical in its outline. The main part, which faces the north, is 146 feet long by 46 feet wide. To this is attached at the centre a wing of equal length, which extends 90 feet to the south. The feature of the facade is the battlement tower 30 feet square, rising to the height of 100 feet. The materials of the constructure of the building are Harvard brick, native granite from the local quarries, and Indiana limestone, the last being used for trimmings and interior decorations. Within, the library contains on the first floor a main hall 56 feet by 24 feet, with a delivery desk and card catalogue cases, clerk's room, newspaper room, reception room and librarian's room. There are also two large rooms for study, in which are accommodations for 60 readers and for about 20,000 books, with open shelves within easy access of the students. The second floor is given to administrative rooms. The present shelving capacity of the store room will accommodate 180,000 volumes, which can be easily increased to 250,000.

General Thomas H. Hubbard, the donor of this building, is the son of the late ex-governor, Dr. John Hubbard of Hallowell, Maine. General Hubbard and his brother gave their services to their country in the war of '61. General Hubbard, on his return from that duty, settled in New York and entered upon the profession of law. Subsequently he became connected, as attorney, with C. B. Huntington, the railroad millionaire.

His gift to Bowdoin will not cost less than $300,000, and the General, with characteristic generosity at all stages of the work on the same, has ordered the purchase, without regard to cost, of every thing that seems necessary to make his gift perfect in all its parts.

THE LAWRENCE LIBRARY.

The first movement towards a public library in Fairfield was made in 1895, when the Fairfield Book Club was organized with a membership of twenty-four women. At the end of the year a bookcase, containing the forty-eight volumes owned by the Book Club, was placed in one of the stores; and thus a circulating library was established. In July, 1899, as the books, now numbering two hundred, had outgrown the bookcase, two pleasant rooms were secured in the bank building, and a reading room was added to the circulating library. In July, 1901, six years after the Book Club was formed, the circulating library, increased to one thousand volumes by the books of the club and various gifts, was transferred to the Fairfield Library Association. Early in the history of the Book Club a library fund was started, which amounted in the six years to $400.

In May, 1900, Mr. Edward J. Lawrence, who had watched with interest the efforts of the Book Club, made known his intention of presenting the town with a public library building. A large and beautiful lot on Lawrence avenue was donated by Mrs. Louise E. Newhall. Opposite this lot is Monument Park, with its soldiers' monument and handsome fountain.

Mr. Lawrence is one of Fairfield's most respected citizens. He has always lived in this town where he was born. He commenced the business of manufacturing lumber in 1862, and is to-day one of the most prominent lumbermen of the State. His success is due to his hard work, and honest and conservative business methods. This beautiful library, so highly valued by the people of his town, is a fitting testimonial of the love and esteem which he bears them.

The building, of which a cut is shown, was begun in September, 1900. It is built of native stone, a slate of different shadings of gray and yellow, with gray granite trimmings. The roof is covered with green slate, and the dormer windows present a beautiful appearance through the introduction of gray granite corners, which are topped with carved finials. On the right of the entrance is a tower.

The delivery room is fourteen feet square, and has a domed ceiling supported by eight Corinthian pilasters. Around the base of the dome are inscribed the names of nine New England authors. On the right of the delivery room is the stackroom, which contains four double stacks, capable of holding 5,000 books. This room has a capacity of 15,000 volumes. On the left is the reading room, which is of the same size as the stackroom. Over the fireplace hangs a fine pastel portrait of Mr. Lawrence. It is the work of Mrs. Flora Cross Clark, and was presented to the library by the Fairfield Book Club. Opposite the delivery room is the catalogue room. In this room are two stained glass windows, containing the portraits of Mr. Lawrence's two daughters. Opening off the stackroom is a commodious librarian's room. The interior of the building is finished in beech, birch, and sycamore. The building is well lighted with electricity.

Of the 4,000 books which the library now contains, 1,100 volumes, including an excellent reference library, were the gift of the Book Club; and the remaining volumes were donated by Mrs. Newhall and Mr. Lawrence.

The architect of the building was Mr. W. R. Miller of Auburn; the builder, Mr. Horace Purinton of Waterville.

The library was dedicated July 24, 1901.
